Run for freedom

Event raises money for the Tim Osmond Sports Complex

By KIMI LILLIG

ANTIOCH - More than 1,100 runners and walkers of all ages crowded downtown Antioch for the village's 14th annual Run for Freedom.

The Chicago Area Runners Association certified 5K began at 8 a.m. July 4 with the presentation of a $10,000 check from the State Bank of the Lakes to the Tim Osmond Sports Complex, which will become the new field house for Antioch Community High School.

"We always find a worthy cause for donation," said Jim Kinney, president of State Bank of the Lakes. "The Tim Osmond Sports Complex sounded like a worthwhile venture for all of the Antioch community."

Those who participated in the Run for Freedom ran or walked three miles through a residential part of Antioch.

"This event attracts a broad variety of participation," Kinney said. "We get serious runners and families with strollers."

The race concluded with a ceremony to award the top three male and female winners in each age range. The winners received a medal and first-place runners received two tickets to a Milwaukee Brewers game.

Many of the participants were just happy to be out exercising with other people.

"[The event] really brings the community together," said 16-year-old Kyle Coia of Lake Villa. "This is my second year running, and I run for fun, to relax and to get faster."

Jim and Linda Gleeson also found that the race had other benefits.

"The whole community gets into it," Jim Gleeson said. "Neighbors provide water and sprinklers for runners along the route."

The event had plenty of support from runners and volunteers, said race coordinator Rosemary Killinik. State Bank of the Lakes employees volunteered at the event; the VFW presented the flags; and the Antioch Madrigals sang the national anthem to help get the even started.

"This is the right way to start the holiday weekend," Linda Gleeson said.

The race was followed by a Fourth of July parade, a celebration in Williams Park, music and fireworks.

"[The race] starts off the best day in Antioch: July 4," Killinik said.

Runners in the Antioch Run for Freedom on July 4 finish the race.

Saying goodbye to another member of the team

Last week, we introduced two new people to the Lake County Journals. This week, we say goodbye to one more.

Jessica Jacobsen has joined the copy desk at the Northwest Herald, a daily newspaper and one of our sister publications.

It's a great move for her and a well-deserved one at that.

Jessica has been a tremendous help to me at the Lake County Journals in my time here with her copy editing and writing abilities, as well as her depth of knowledge about Lake County. We joke that there's not a person in Lake County that she's not related to.

Joe

It might even be true. Having grown up here, she knew the inner workings of Lake County, and since she is still in the same company, I will continue to seek her input on perplexing puzzles such as why there are two Grand avenues.

She especially did a wonderful job covering sports for us. I know that was something she was excited to get a chance to do and will probably be one of the things she misses most. You can read her goodbye sports column on page 7B of this issue.

Jessica also covered the village of Antioch, and for those of you wanting to get information, pictures or stories into the paper, you can e-mail me at jgrace@nwnewsgroup.com for the time being.

If you wish to say goodbye to Jessica or thank her for a story that she wrote, you can write to her at jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com.

With the rising temperatures, summer is officially here.

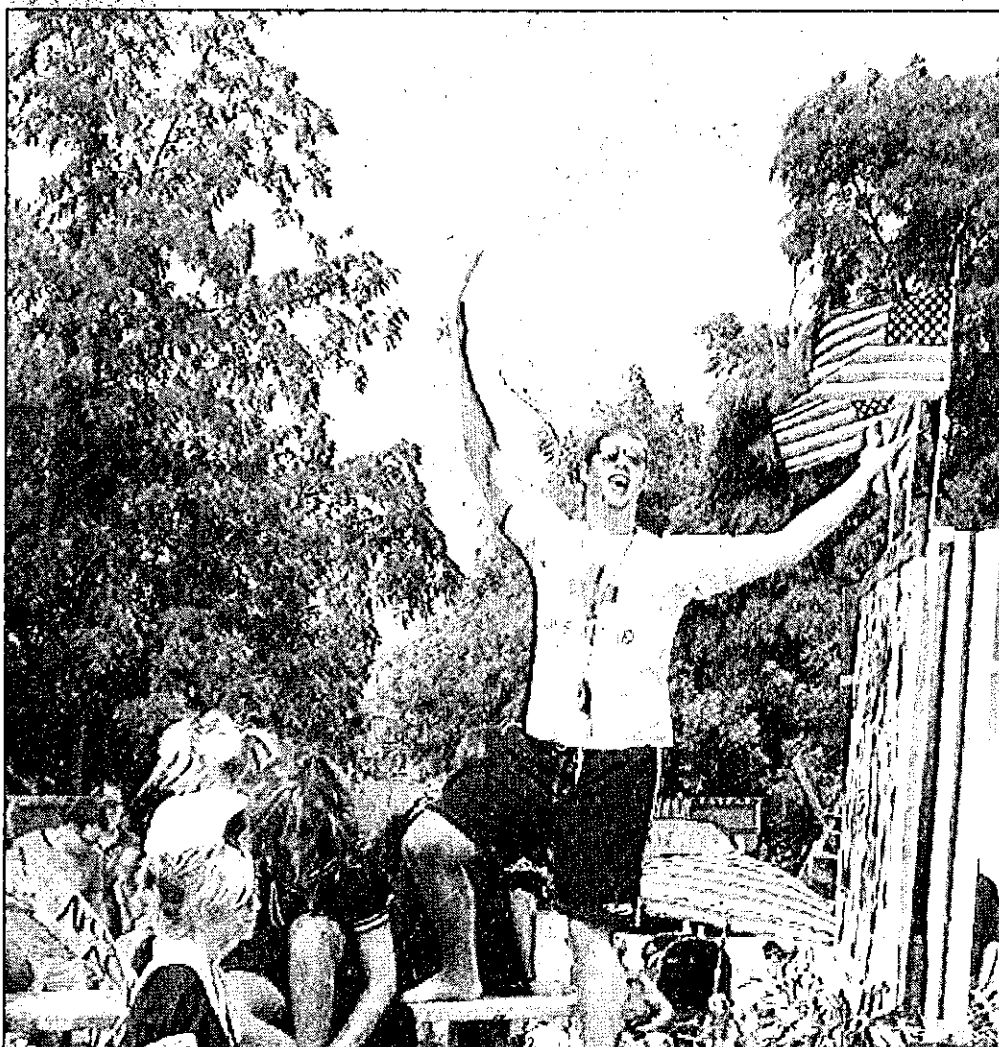

Our poll question this week asks how you cool off during the summer.

I personally never leave the confines of air-conditioned places, but I'm sure there are much more fun ways of staying cool in the summer.

If you know of any cool ideas on staying cool in the summer, we'll be happy to print them. You can e-mail ideas to me at jgrace@nwnewsgroup.com.

• Write to managing editor Joe Grace at jgrace@nwnewsgroup.com.

A learning experience

Where I normally let you know what is going on in Antioch, I would like to say thank you to the people of Antioch. This will be my last column I write for the Antioch Journal because I have taken a job with our daily paper in Crystal Lake, the Northwest Herald.

I came to the Lake County Journals after graduating from Marquette University in Milwaukee with a degree in journalism. When I was looking for a job around graduation, which was back in May 2006, applying to my hometown paper made sense. I didn't know whether I would get it, but I did. I saw the job transition me from being mainly a copy editor/page designer into more of a reporting role. That reporting role included Antioch.

For the most part, I received positive feedback from the public and village officials about coverage of the area. Though I could not cover it all, I hope I still was able to get across the message of the kind of community Antioch is all about. It is a community that looks out for everyone. Whether it be the community coming together in a time of need like the recent flooding or celebrating the completion of phase one of the Tim Osmond Sports Complex, I could tell this is a special community. Thank you to all the people who helped me, a lifetime Lake County resident, learn a little bit more about the county she will always call home.

Taste promises to deliver

Four-day festival to include carnival, music and scrumptious selections

Want to know more?

For more information about Antioch's Taste of Summer, visit www.AntiochChamber.org, or call 847-395-2233.

ANTIOCH—Pretty soon, downtown Antioch will be filled with people, food and other activities. Antioch's Taste of Summer will take place from July 17 to 20 in downtown Antioch.

And Antioch Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Barbara Porch thinks people will enjoy what the event has to offer.

"They can look forward to four days of great family fun," Porch said. "We offer something for everybody."

That includes a carnival, live music and performances, Busy Brains Museum and much more.

Hours for the Taste of Summer are noon to 10 p.m. Thursday, July 17; noon to 11 p.m. Friday, July 18, and Saturday, July 19; and from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, June 20.

One thing that is new this year, Porch said, is that local bands will perform during the day such as The August, STRIVE, Michael Lescher on keyboards, and Out of the Way.

"We try to make the festival bigger and better for people who attend," Porch said about adding the local talent.

The festival also will have bands headline each night: July 17 will be Mr. Myers Caribbean Rock; July 18 will be World Class Noise; July 19 will be BBI Live; and July 20 will be American English.

"We're jammed packed with entertainment," Porch said.

Another thing patrons can look forward to is the carnival-rides wrist band specials, Porch said.

The wrist bands allow people to get on unlimited rides during a specific time.

The wrist band hours are from 5 to 10 p.m. July 17 and from noon to 5 p.m. July 19 and 20.

Once again, the Taste of Antioch celebration will have all-day sidewalk sales.

"[It's] one of the reasons the Taste was created," Porch said.

Merchants in downtown Antioch will spill out onto the streets with their best sales of season, Porch said.

ACHS student gets soccer scholarship

By MATT DOUTHETT

mdouthett@nwnewsgroup.com

LINDENHURST — Having extra money for college is always nice.

Lisa Raetzman and Kia Miller recently had the privilege to receive $1,000 scholarships through the Lindenhurst Park District's Roland Wetzels Scholarship Fund.

Miller is a 2008 graduate of Antioch Community High School and will attend Murray State University in Murray, Ky.

"I'm extremely grateful for getting [the scholarship]," she said.

"I've been with Lindenhurst Park District for a really long time and helped coach with my brother. It was nice to have it all pay back."

Miller has played on a travel soccer team since fourth grade and attended an online high school.

She didn't attend Antioch until her senior year, but she did play soccer there.

The Antioch graduate said she plans to play on an intramural or club team in college, and will miss being on the high school team.

"I'll miss everything about it — the great friendships that you have on the team," she said. "It really is your family."

Though soccer isn't the sport she plans to play in college, Miller will be busy with another sport. She is going to compete with Murray State's equestrian team.

She said she chose Murray State because of that particular team.

"I can get a major there in equine science," Miller said. "I also really liked their campus — it's not too small — but I really liked everything about it."

Murray State's equestrian team is part of the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association. The IHSA features 315 colleges and universities from across the United States.

Miller has been participating in equestrian since she was 6 years old.

"That's one of the biggest things I'm looking forward to," she said. "I'm really excited to be able to compete."

Teaching through art

Local artist researches, paints Native American trail marker trees

By KRISTINA PETERS
kpeters@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – Antioch artist Dennis Downes' paintings of trail marker trees is astonishing viewers at the Northbrook Historical Society.

The trail marker trees have a bend in the trunk about 3 to 4 feet above the ground and were created and used by the Native Americans as directional guides for food, water, shelter and areas of interest.

Judy Hughes, president of the historical society and chairman of the Northbrook Arts Commission, said most people did not know the system existed before seeing Downes' paintings.

"Time and time again we hear, 'Gee, I didn't know that,'" Hughes said.

"They're fascinated, absolutely fascinated."

Downes' trail marker trees collection is currently on display at the Northbrook Historical Society and will be shown at Northbrook's Art in the Park fine arts festival.

The show will be held at Village Green Park, 1320 Shermer Road, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, July 12, and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, July 13.

Over the last 25 years, Downes has been researching and visiting trail marker trees in more than 20 states.

"I've probably been lucky to see about 40 to 50 authentic trail marker trees," Downes said.

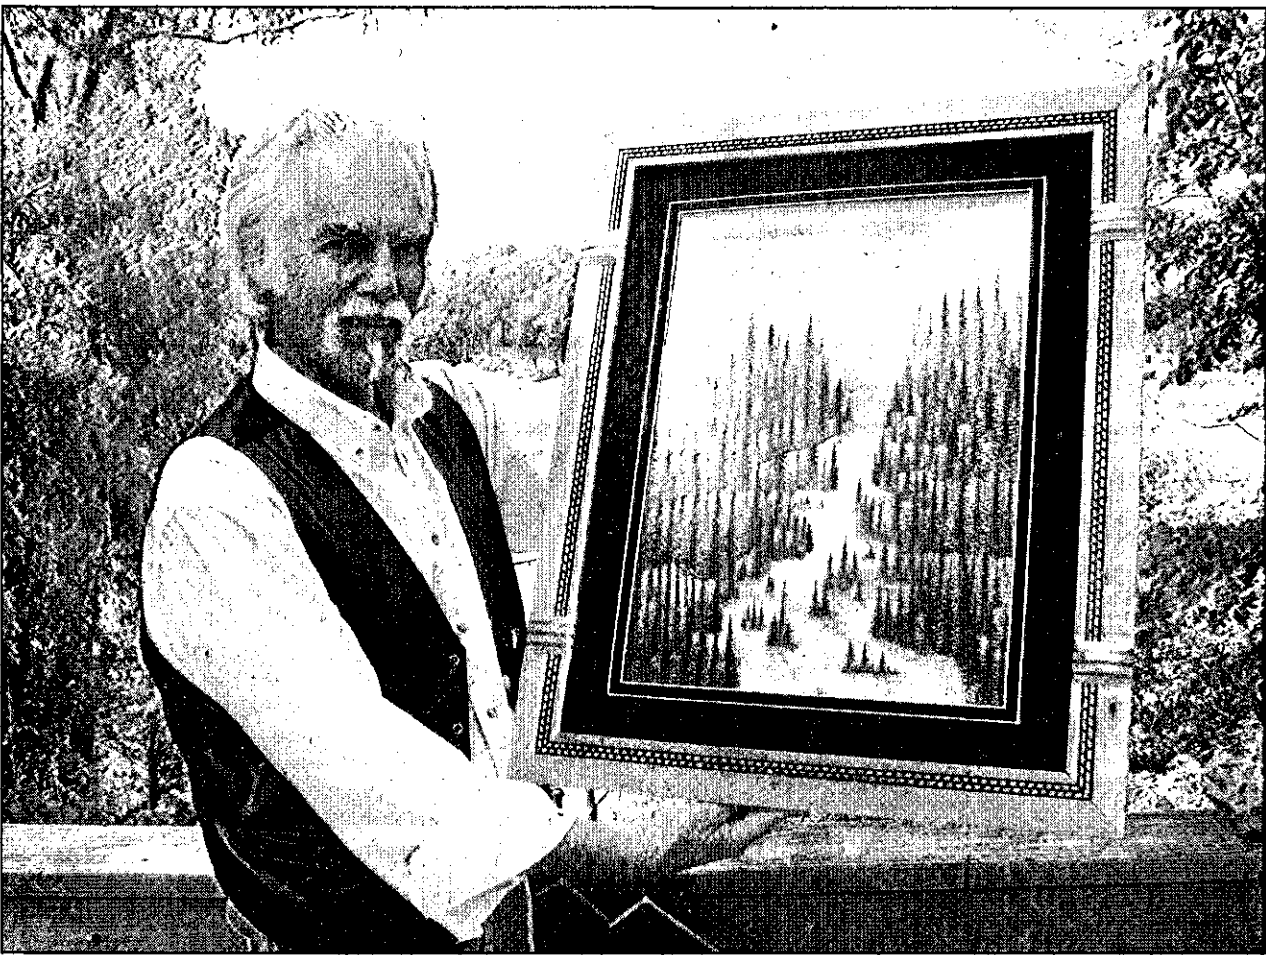

He said there are many throughout Lake and Cook counties.

Brian Buchhotz, an arborist, often travels with Downes to help make sure what they see are true trail marker trees.

"Having an arborist from Lake County adds to the authenticity of the research," Downes said.

Buchhotz is able to determine the age of the tree without doing any harm.

Also at Art in the Park will be

Downes' 5-foot bronze sculpture of a trail marker tree as well as some of his newer paintings.

A bigger trail marker tree sculpture that stands 16-feet tall is located outside near the entrance of the Lake County Discovery Museum in Wauconda. Downes even has a sculpture, along with a painting of Sedona, Ariz., that he donated, in the entrance of the Antioch Public Library.

"I do a lot of my research out of there," Downes said. "I've worn out a lot of library cards going there."

His research on the trail marker trees caught the attention of Chicago

Publishing.

The company contacted Downes after seeing one of his exhibits in Chicago and asked if he would be interested in a book.

"I'm just trying to carry the torch further," Downes said.

Like the trail marker trees, Downes' paintings are of places he has seen, which is why he does most of his work while traveling.

"If you haven't been to a place, I think it comes across to the people," Downes said.

He said that the colors of the water or of the mountains can be off otherwise.

Other than landscapes, he also does paintings associated with the rituals and traditions of Native American tribes.

Downes recently won Best of Show in painting at the 2008 Festivals of Masters in Glencoe for his painting of Alberta, Canada; and at the 2007 Festival of Masters in Joliet, he won Best of Show in mixed media.

Downes completes about 20 original pieces of artwork each year.

He said he could possibly do more. But Downes does not just paint, he also makes his own paper and frames.

"It limits the amount of pieces

Downes' upcoming shows

Art in the Park: From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, July 12, and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, July 13, in Village Green Park, 1320 Shermer Road, Northbrook

Art at the Glen: From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug. 2 and 3 at the Glen Town Center in Glenview, 1951 Tower Drive

I can do a year," he said, "but I am comfortable with that."

The materials he uses for the paper and frames are those that could have been found in older times.

He creates the paper using native grasses found in the Lake County area and the frames are carved and detailed with porcupine quills and glass beads.

Downes calls his paper-making technique "The Berriochoa Technique" after his mother who is in the Basque Berriochoa Clan who have lived in the Idaho and Montana area for the past 100 years.

As for the frames, Downes –who has never taken a woodworking course –likes to study history and said artists originally did all their framework.

"I just reincorporate an old concept," he said.

Roger Shule, president of the president of the Antioch Fine Arts Foundation of which Downes is a member of, said because Downes makes his own frames and paper that makes him the complete package.

"Dennis is the real deal," Shule said.

Shule said Downes often donates a painting to the organization for raffles during art shows.

"He's been very good to us," Shule said.

Downes' artwork also has been displayed in the Antioch Fine Arts Foundation's gallery on several occasions.

"Dennis is a wonderful addition to our wonderful, small little gallery," Shule said.

A little bit of magic

PM&L Theatre in Antioch puts on second show in a series

By HEATHER HOLM

antioch@weeklyjournals.com

ANTIOCH - There is a little bit of magic in everyone.

This was shown July 7 when the play "A Little Bit of Magic" was performed at the PM&L Theatre in Antioch for children and their families.

It is the second out of a three-part show. The first was "The Little Mermaid" on June 10 and the third will be "Tiny Thumbelina" on August 12.

The Round Lake Area Park District Community Theatre Neighborhood Players are putting on all the shows.

The Players are made up of four high school girls - Lily Noonan, Samantha Stonecipher, Tanya Dutko and Ashley Rodriguez.

Neighborhood Players director Christi Nicholson said this show was especially interactive for children in the crowd.

"Most of the plays have some sort of interaction," Nicholson said. "This one had a lot because it was mostly for a younger age group, around the ages of 2 to 7. The rest of the plays in the set are mostly for all age groups, though. And all shows do have a raffle with prizes to give out to the children in the beginning."

This set of Neighborhood Players has been together since 2001 and just began to branch out of the community.

"We produce shows all over," Nicholson said. "This is our third time with the PM&L Theatre. Several of our shows are at the College of Lake County and have been for the past three years and several are at the Antioch Park District. We have been working with PM&L since April of this year."

This group has done this show eight times and 26 other plays over

Upcoming show

The Neighborhood Players will perform "Tiny Thumbelina" at 1 p.m. Aug. 12 in the PM&L Theatre at Antioch. An optional workshop on stage make-up will follow the show. Tickets are available at the door for $4 each, general admission. The theatre opens at 12:30 for ticket sales.

the course of the summer.

"We are a traveling theater group so we bring all our props and set them up then put them back in the van and go somewhere else," Nicholson said. "We will be doing many more throughout the year as well. The park district really appreciates it."

The kids also seem to really enjoy it, Nicholson said.

"I think it [the interaction aspect] is wonderful and a great part of the show," she said. "It really keeps the kids interested."

Most of the plays that have taken place in the past at the PM&L Theatre have been aimed at adults or young adults, said PM&L Vice President of Marketing Reggie Reynolds.

"Usually children have to go all the way to the Marriott to see plays for their own age group," Reynolds said. "So, we thought this would be nice and we could provide a beautiful theater with talent on stage."

Reynolds also said the mothers and grandmothers really seem to appreciate it during the summer and on the weekends.

"Christi has a whole following of people and everyone participates," Reynolds said. "This is a chance to put volunteering into a formal setting and you can see where the future actors of PM&L are."

The actors agreed that their favorite part of the work experience is "being totally shameless and working with the kids."

They also love the part when the kids come back for autographs because the kids really get into and some even give the actors free hugs.

"I liked it a lot," said Gianna Gerling, a young girl who went to see the show. "Even though I didn't get picked, I had a great time. I liked when the girl didn't know how to do magic."

Her mother, Denise, also thought the show was good and that the girls did a great job.

"I thought the interaction was fabulous and it made the show," Denise said. "We made a whole day out of coming out to see the play and Gianna's grandma even came along."

The Neighborhood Players will also perform "Tiny Thumbelina" and "A Little Bit of Magic" at the College of Lake County.

Antioch VBS takes kids on trek through time

ANTIOCH - Are your kids going bananas looking for summertime fun? Then send them to Beautiful Savior Lutheran Church in Antioch from 9 a.m. to noon July 14 to 18 for a journey at the Amazon Expedition Vacation Bible School, where they will have more fun than a kid should be allowed to have. They'll be jammin' in the jungle as they enjoy songs, crafts, games, goodies, and dramas. They'll also venture on a trek through time as they discover the "Seven C's of History."

"We chose this VBS program because there is an alarming trend of young people who leave the church after they graduate because their questions about the Bible had not been answered," said VBS coordinator Mike Gonski in a release. "According to a study by America's Research Group, 86 percent of those young people polled questioned the accuracy of the Bible during high school years, with most of those citing doubts about the Bible's authority or trustworthiness. It is our intent at Beautiful Savior to reverse this sad trend by equipping young children with the answers they seek."

The Amazon Expedition is open to the public and designed for children ages 4-12. Call the church office at 847-395-9400 to reserve a spot and for more information. Walk-ins are welcome. Beautiful Savior is at 1501 Deep Lake Road in Antioch.

Great America tickets available at parks office

The parks office will sell one-day admission tickets at $34.50 for adults, a $22.14 savings.

Tickets for children 3 years old to 48 inches, are available at $29.50, a savings of $1.39.

Residents also can buy season passes at the parks office for $88, a savings of $14.99. Cash only will be accepted for these tickets. Call 847-395-2160.

Writing a life story

LINDENHURST - Capturing one's own life story on paper can help a person appreciate the journey he or she is living. Area residents are invited to do just that during memoir-writing workshops that will take place from noon to 1 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 6 and 20 at Vista Surgery Center, 1050 Red Oak Land, Lindenhurst. The event will be hosted by the Vista Health Chapter of Senior Circle, a national organization affiliated with Vista Health System. ## A life lesson from night of partying

Ahem. Before I go any farther, I want to point out that the people in the following tale were 21 years or older and that the shindig was arranged so that no one had to drive their cars. Be safe.

"Now that I'm in my 30s, I can hold my drink."
— From "Bridget Jones's Diary," as Bridget falls head-first out of a cab.

Twenty-one is a little early for some of us.

In many cases, I think the drinking age should start when your ability to embarrass or annoy everyone around you has waned considerably.

Ten years ago, some college friends and I headed up to the Wisconsin Dells for a Fourth of July Campout Bash.

We were 21 and spectacularly stupid. Any awareness that we were no longer in our college apartment complex in DeKalb — the kind not inhabited by humans older than 27 or younger than 19 — quickly dissolved into a keg of cheap beer.

The party roared into the night. Why no one called the cops — or at the very least fired a warning shot over our heads — still baffles me.

It was probably because we got the neighboring campsites involved — or rather some middle-aged dads whose wives banned alcohol from the camper.

If aliens ever come to this planet to snag a few of us, they might just want to plant a keg of cheap, warm beer in the woods with a gaggle of plastered 21-year-olds to guard it.

"Zu guys want some uh ... (searches for word, looks at cup) beers?" Hiccup. Stumble. Slosh. Giggle. "Izzit OK if they (hic) have some? ... Hey, where'd you go?"

It was one of those parties where suddenly one of the drunks grows a conscience and starts screaming "Shhhhhhh! Shhhhhhh! Shhhhhhh! Other people are trying to SLEEP at this campground!"

How considerate.
"Heeeeeeey! There's little kids around here! Stop telling those DIRTY JOKES! ... Ohhhhhh %$(*&#&####!!!! I just dropped a beer in my lap."

As if the parents of the tots in nearby campers were thinking, "Well, at least one person over there cares. I'll sleep well now, despite the deafening, profane ruckus."

Little did we know our drunken havoc was going to come back and bite us in the you-know-where.

And it was going to come back early. Of course, the tots were sleeping well because most kids can sleep through your average rude twentysomethings' kegger.

Shawn Caragher poses for a portrait among some of the property that his Fox Lake business, Advaced Recovery Inc., has recently repossessed. The auto industry is going through its own subprime-lending problems similar to the housing market.

The repo man taketh away

Repossessions of vehicles on the rise throughout area

By TIM KANE
tkane@nwnewsgroup.com

Shawn Caragher is a "repo man."
"It's like stealing, but it's legal," said Caragher, operations manager and owner of Advanced Recovery Inc. based in Fox Lake.

"A guy walks outside, sees his car missing, and freaks out," Caragher said. "He runs back inside, saying, 'My car was stolen!' I call him and say: 'Hey, your car wasn't stolen. Call your bank.'"

The auto industry has its own subprime-lending mess, with lenders extending longer, costlier loans to people unable to keep up with their payments, MSN Money.com said.

About 1.5 million vehicles were repossessed in 2007, a 10 percent increase over 2006. Some experts are predicting a 10 percent increase in 2008, according to Bankrate.com.

Caragher said he had sympathy for about 10 percent of the people from whom he repossesses property, people who unexpectedly have lost their jobs or have experienced some other devastating loss that leaves them strapped for cash.

But most of the people he takes property from are in over their heads and they know it, he said.

Caragher repossess anything — luxury yachts from people posing as millionaires, backhoes from construction workers who are away at lunch.

Once, he took a semi at a truck stop while the driver was inside taking a shower.

He has a computer to render key codes and transponder codes, and he uses a slim-jim to get into locked vehicles.

Working the night shift

Most of his work is done at night.
"It's easier when people are sleeping," Caragher said.

"There is the element of surprise."

Vehicles usually are towed away and auctioned off. He has six men working for him.

Caragher usually takes 25 to 30 vehicles a week, he said, but that number dropped recently because of the economic stimulus checks that were issued by the federal government.

By the numbers

About 1.5 million vehicles were repossessed in 2007, a 10 percent increase over 2006. Some experts are predicting a 10 percent increase in 2008, according to Bankrate.com.

In Lake in the Hills, an average of two to three automobiles are repossessed each week, said James Wales, director of police and public safety.

"We recommend that they alert us," Wales said. "They usually come in here and show us their papers. It's the prudent thing because if we get a call from a resident telling us that someone is stealing their car, we're apt to take it seriously."

In Crystal Lake, about one car a month is repossessed, Deputy Chief Dennis Harris said.

"That's the number we know of," Harris said. "There is no legal requirement that the recovery agent checks in with us."

From action packed to quite mundane

The job was more like an action-packed movie decades ago.

Now it's more mundane, Caragher said, but he still loves what he does.

"When I first started about 20 years ago, it was a little violent," Caragher said. "I've been shot at, been in some tense situations. But nowadays, you see the same people. These same people use different finance companies to get automobiles. They know you by name and give you the keys when you go to pick up the car and laugh about it. And they go out and buy another car the next day. There is always somebody that will sell you a car. It's a game."

The 10 percent Caragher feels sorry for are those who, through a series of unfortunate circumstances, find themselves behind on their bills.

Caragher has advice for them: Maintain an open line of communication with creditors.

"Talk to the bank," Caragher said. "Let them know what your situation is. Tell them you're having a hard time."

Caragher said that it's when a customer stops talking to creditors that he's hired to retrieve property.

Virginia Peschke, executive director with the Consumer Credit Counseling of McHenry County, said bankers are humans who can be swayed by a sad story.

"It's a known fact that some people who are behind on their bills stop answering the phone and stop opening mail," Peschke said. "I've counseled people who said they didn't believe it would happen, that their cars would be repossessed. But they would park their cars in different places where they thought guys from the bank couldn't find it."

"Talk to the lender," Peschke said. "We have this image in our head that a banker is like, Snidely Whiplash and he's tying us to the railroad tracks. In reality, the bank doesn't want the car. They want the money."

Peschke said a normal reaction was to retreat into a shell.

But she warned against it.

"Maybe you can work out a deal where the payments you missed could be tacked onto the end," Peschke said. "People have told me stuff like, 'Gee, I didn't know you were going to take it on Thursday because I was going to pay you on Friday.'"

These hard economic times

In these hard economic times, Caragher said he was experiencing a downturn in business with too many repossessed automobiles on the market.

They are not moving at car auctions. Caragher gets a flat rate of $350 to $400 for every car he takes, he said.

He said that he gets a lot more for an airplane that he repossesses because he has to hire a bank-approved pilot with insurance to fly the plane.

The repo man likes his job and lives by a credo.

"You give the people respect, and 95 percent of the time you get that respect back," Caragher said.

"People say, 'Hey, you were fair to me. It was nice meeting you. But I sure hope that I never see you again.'"

Women's health initiative launched

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

Sixteen women with ties to Lake County have joined Vista Health System to launch a new women's health initiative - Healthy Woman - for women living in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin.

According to a press release, the mission of Healthy Woman is to empower women with the knowledge and confidence to make informed health care and well-being decisions for themselves and their loved ones, and to improve their emotional, physical and fiscal well-being.

"The women who make up this council are leaders in our community in a variety of ways," said Vista Health System Chief Executive Officer Barbara J. Martin in the release.

"Through their civic, volunteer and community involvement, these diverse women are ambassadors for other women through their leadership roles, proactive community interest, and progressive thinking. These women are providing us with exceptional guidance to ensure that the issues and concerns of the women in our service area are addressed properly."

Set to officially kick off Thursday, Aug. 7, at Key Lime Cove in Gurnee with a free Women's Health Expo from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., followed by a sit-down dinner and presentation by Connie Payton, Healthy Woman's goal is to engage women in dialogue about effective healthcare and life-management choices for themselves and their families.

Price for the sit-down dinner and presentation is $15.

The Women's Health Expo prior to the event is free.

"Connie Payton has spent a lifetime promoting community awareness and family issues," said Jennifer Baker, Healthy Woman coordinator for Vista Health System, in a release.

"As a speaker, Connie brings a unique understanding of life as a busy woman, wife and mother. She exemplifies the ideals and vision of this new program."

After the kick-off event, Healthy Woman will feature a monthly series of free seminars, health fairs, educational programs, and interactive events focusing on women at various locations throughout Lake County.

"There is an abundance of new research that shows that a woman's body is not simply a smaller version of a man's," Smart said in the same release.

"This research is increasingly important both in recognizing and treating women's illnesses and diseases."

The parents were laying in wait.
At the crack of dawn - and I do mean the tiniest fissure of breaking morn - a cacophony of tiny voices could be heard tumbling out of nearby campers.

I imagined the sleepy parents passing out bullhorns and cap guns.

"Ohhhhhh," a party-goer moaned, probably from the garbage can he'd passed out in. "Somebody shut those kids up." Touché.

Measles case reported

County stresses importance of vaccination

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

Measles information

The Lake County Health Department/Community Health Center is reporting the first case of measles in Lake County since 1995.

The case is an 11-year-old girl in the western portion of the county. Her fever began on June 17 and her rash onset was June 20. This child did not receive measles vaccinations. At this time, three of the four siblings of this child, who are also unvaccinated, have since developed fever and rash and are suspect cases.

"This case serves as a reminder of the importance of vaccination for both children and adults," said Irene Pierce, executive director of the health department, in a release. "Vaccination is the best defense against illnesses such as measles, which in severe cases can lead to death."

Measles is very infectious and is often misdiagnosed, particularly when physicians have had little experience diagnosing and recognizing the illness. While measles itself is unpleasant, the complications are dangerous. Up to 20 percent of the people who get the disease can develop complications. In rare cases, a person may suffer encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain.

Measles should be suspected in any patient with a fever, rash (which begins on the face), cough, runny nose, and conjunctivitis or red, runny eyes.

Patients suspected of having measles should contact their physicians for further evaluation, preferably prior to visiting the doctor to help prevent the spread of disease, and be reported to the local health department as soon as possible, within 24 hours.

More information regarding measles disease can be seen at www.cdc.gov/vaccines/vpd-vac/measles/default.htm. If you have questions regarding measles, call the health department's communicable disease program at 847-377-8130.

Worldwide, 20 million cases of measles still occur each year, and the disease remains a significant cause of vaccine-preventable death among children. As of May 23, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention had confirmed 103 cases nationwide, which is the highest number of cases for the same time period since 2001. Illinois is currently reporting 31 provisional measles cases.

The measles vaccine (MMR) is strongly endorsed by medical and public health experts as safe and effective. All children should receive two doses of MMR vaccine. The first dose is recommended at 12 to 15 months of age and the second dose at 4 to 6 years of age. All adults born during or after 1957 should receive at least one dose of vaccine unless they have documented evidence of measles immunity (a blood test or a physician's diagnosis of measles). Two doses are recommended for all international travelers, healthcare personnel, and students at secondary and post-secondary educational facilities.

Group giving 5,000 backpacks to kids

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

More than 35 Catalyst-affiliated churches in Lake County are planning to donate 5,000 backpacks filled with school supplies to local school children in need.

Catalyst is a network mobilizing churches in Lake County for spiritual revolution across the Chicago area.

Catalyst church attendees can obtain empty backpacks for $6.

Participants can then purchase school supplies and return the filled backpacks to their church by July 27. A backpack kit also be purchased for $20 at www.Catalystweb.org.

Bill Yaccino, executive director at Catalyst, said in a release that the backpack drive "helps so that kids can start the school year off without obstacles to learning."

Three thousand backpacks filled with supplies will be delivered to schools and the United Way the first week of August. And 2,000 backpacks will be distributed at the Waukegan Kids 1st health Fair on Aug. 6. Catalyst is partnering with the United Way of Lake County to distribute the backpacks to schools in most need. Areas served will include Waukegan, North Chicago and Round Lake.

Governor announces disaster unemployment help for some

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

Gov. Rod Blagojevich announced that residents who became unemployed due to severe storms and flooding beginning June 1 might be eligible for federal Disaster Unemployment Assistance (DUA).

The assistance is available as part of the federal disaster declaration that was secured by the governor after the storm.

Residents of 14 counties, including Lake County, who have been unable to work as a result of the storm, should contact their local IDES office as soon as possible to determine if they are eligible for DUA.

Residents are eligible to apply for DUA if they are not eligible for regular unemployment insurance benefits.

This includes workers who have not earned sufficient wage credits, sole proprietors, independent contractors, farmers and other people who are not part of the unemployment insurance benefits.

Claims for DUA must be filed no later than 30 days for the date of this notice.

Applicants for Disaster Unemployment Assistance should bring their Social Security number and if possible, pay stubs or any other documentation showing recent earnings and employment.

Maximum benefits under the DUA program, a week, are $511 for a claimant with a dependent child, $439 for a claimant with a dependent spouse and $369 for an individual claimant.

The minimum weekly benefit for DUA claims is $154.

For more information, call 847-543-7400.

Too many yes or no questions

A recently released poll said Barack Obama was favored over John McCain among those who don't own pets. Conversely, McCain is favored among those who do own pets.

We have officially taken polling too far.

We have U.S. troops in Iraq and Afghanistan, gas prices are ridiculously high, the economy has seen better days and someone is taking the time to figure out whether animal owners prefer one presidential candidate over the other?

I just don't get it.

There are important questions out there that need answering and pet ownership and subsequent preferences is not one of them.

And I don't think it's the questions we're asking that's the problem, but rather how we're asking them.

One of the first things you learn in journalism is to avoid "yes" or "no" answers.

Yet, we're subjected to "yes" or "no" choices on some of the most important decisions we as a country are facing.

Instead of why do you think it's wrong or right to electrocute someone who has killed somebody, we have narrowed it to "Do you believe in the death penalty?" Instead of debating what we should spend our money on, we're asked if we want higher taxes or not.

Rather than collecting yes or no positions on issues as if they were baseball cards, we should be debating these positions on what's good about them or what's bad about them without jumping immediately to a my way or the highway platform.

I'm pretty sure the majority of pet owners would agree with me.

Natural gas price hike

The cost of natural gas has hit an all-time high.

Most consumers likely have failed to notice that their Nicor Gas bill has not dropped much, if any, since the winter even though their usage is way down.

The reason for this is that natural gas is costing Nicor $1.45 a therm - a record high. The previous high was $1.20 a therm in October-November 2005, and that occurred in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina.

What is most alarming is that the natural gas market has hit this all-time high in the middle of summer. In June 2007, the price was 88 cents a therm. This year, the price was $1.23 a therm, a 39.77 percent increase.

Nicor officials noted several possible reasons for the unusual price spike: Relatively low volumes of liquefied natural gas imported this year, uncertainty related to the hurricane season, lower-than-average gas in storage, and the high price of crude oil.

However, natural gas production is up nationally, according to the Energy Information Administration.

"There is not a good supply-and-demand reason for what is going on," said David Kolata, executive director of the Citizens Utility Board, a nonprofit, nonpartisan consumer watchdog. "People already are feeling the cost of high gas and food prices. If we add preposterously high heating bills this winter on top of that, it will be a disaster."

Kolata said more oversight is needed in the market to ensure manipulation is not occurring.

Speculation in the natural gas market could be a factor in driving the price higher. It is possible that the current high prices simply represent a bubble that could burst between now and winter, sparing consumers.

But, if prices do not come down, consumers can expect record high heating bills. Consumers need to be aware of what is happening in the natural gas market and be prepared to pay much more to heat their homes.

Checks on power

To the Editor:

While a foolish administration commits high crimes and treason, and a cowardly Congress refuses to use its power to impeach as it enables the executive branch to continue wrongdoing, the Supreme Court has in a small way restored my faith in the checks and balances written into our Constitution.

Some Americans might disagree with the decisions to grant detainees habeas corpus, and that the individual has the right to have a handgun. The checks and balances between the branches, plus the Bill of Rights, were meant to not allow the overreach by any branch or anyone in the executive, legislative, or judicial branches.

Read the Articles of Impeachment introduced to the House of Representatives by Dennis Kucinich last year against Vice President Dick Cheney, this year against President George W. Bush, to recognize the wanton disregard for the Constitution by our executives, and similarly the blatant shirking of duty by the Congress to hold them accountable.

Even though Bush and Cheney continue their looting, and Congress stuffs their pockets with Telecom cash, the Gitmo detainees have a right to be charged with an offense, or be released, and we have a right to defend ourselves with a handgun. So says the Supreme Court.

Illinois protects adulterers

To the Editor:

Adultery in Illinois is illegal (720 ILCS 5/11-7).

Unfortunately, the Illinois legal system, from top to bottom, refuses to enforce the law.

Making the point, notwithstanding numerous provable complaints, there hasn't been one prosecution statewide since the enacting of present law in 1961.

Whether intentional or not, this legal disconnect gives adulterers valuable protections; e.g., adulterers in divorce cases routinely refuse to answer questions regarding their adultery by claiming their Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination, notwithstanding that the adultery law is never enforced.

This leaves the victim of the adultery without legal redress and, ultimately, the litigants are treated as equals by the court when, in fact, one violated the law and should therefore be suspect.

Illinois lawmakers claim concern for families and children by keeping the adultery law passed by their predecessors on the books. Sadly, it is a cruel hoax, as their claims reference a law that is without enforcement, and therefore without meaning. In fact, 720 ILCS 5/11-7 has morphed into protection for the very cheaters it is supposed to prosecute, leading to a situation wherein adultery victims are made victims once again, while adulterous lawbreakers are isolated from criminal prosecution and civil accountability.

Life off balance

To the Editor:

Mother nature is showing us how life is when it is off balance and that Mother Nature can destroy everything in its path. Our existence depends on being balanced.

We need to step back and really see what we ourselves are doing with our own existence.

The earth can only handle so much, and the more that human beings think of controlling everything - land, oil, other countries - and that we think we can do anything we want with the land, we will have a rude awakening.

Nature now is letting us know that when all of us are out of control with life, there can only be destruction.

No one will win if we don't start to love, show kindness, compassion.

Peace can only come from within, and we are only the stewards of the land, not the controllers.

It's a no-win situation for all of us. All mankind and living creatures depend on how we treat one another.

Nature is showing us now what can happen if we forget how to balance life for goodness, and not for our own ego-driven purpose.

God bless us all.

Rising gas prices causing plant closings

General Motors last month announced that it is closing four of its plants, including one in Janesville, Wis., just over the state line, north of Rockford. So, the plant closing will affect Illinois too, as many of its residents commute to work in Janesville.

The chief executive officer of General Motors said that the closings are caused by the impact of rising fuel costs and sagging sales of mid-sized trucks and sports utility vehicles, which are manufactured at Janesville. The drop in sales can be directly attributed to high gas prices. More and more customers are turning to fuel-efficient cars, the small or medium-sized cars and the hybrids.

I was interested in the Janesville announcement for a couple of reasons. In this column, I have suggested that government too often reaches in its pocketbook to provide incentives, cash grants, or bailouts to corporations, and those policies can backfire. One that I've often criticized, and the backfires might come long-term, is the over-use of tax increment financing, which usually helps well-heeled developers.

The Janesville plant was the oldest for GM. It lived through the Depression and the heavy GM layoffs during the 1980s. Five years ago, the state of Wisconsin gave GM $10 million in grants to assist with a $175 million plant overhaul. The grants were given on condition that the corporation would keep at least 3,300 workers at the plant through 2010.

Naturally, General Motors has spent most of the grant money. In addition, it reneged on the deal since its workforce has been well below the employee threshold, recently at 2,600, and, with the potential closing, sliding down to zero.

The state of Wisconsin is trying to get GM to pay back the grant money. Oh yeah. Taxpayers look to lose all around. They lose what for most of a century was their No. 1 employer and they'll probably lose the $10 million, too.

The GM shutdown reminded me of the Chrysler crisis back in the late '70s and early '80s. It affected the Belvidere plant, also near Rockford. Chrysler was near bankruptcy and its dire situation led to the record-setting $1.2 billion federal bailout. Besides the federal guaranteed loan, some states contributed loans and grants to keep Chrysler afloat.

Illinois pitched in with a $20 million loan. It was probably a blessing to all taxpayers that Lee Iacocca was chosen to lead GM out of the fiscal mess.

While many pressured him to go the bankruptcy route, he resisted. His persistence paid off and Chrysler paid off all of its obligation to governments. That's one for the books.

The other reason that I was interested in the Janesville closings is that it appears that American automakers aren't as "swift" as their foreign counterparts. The energy crisis in the '70s led most of the foreign auto makers to concentrate more heavily on fuel-efficient vehicles.

The American auto industry went the opposite direction. It fell for America's "bigger is better" love affair with automobiles. The rage became the SUVs. Then came the medium-size trucks. Remember when most of the buyers of trucks were businesses and farm owners? Not in recent years.

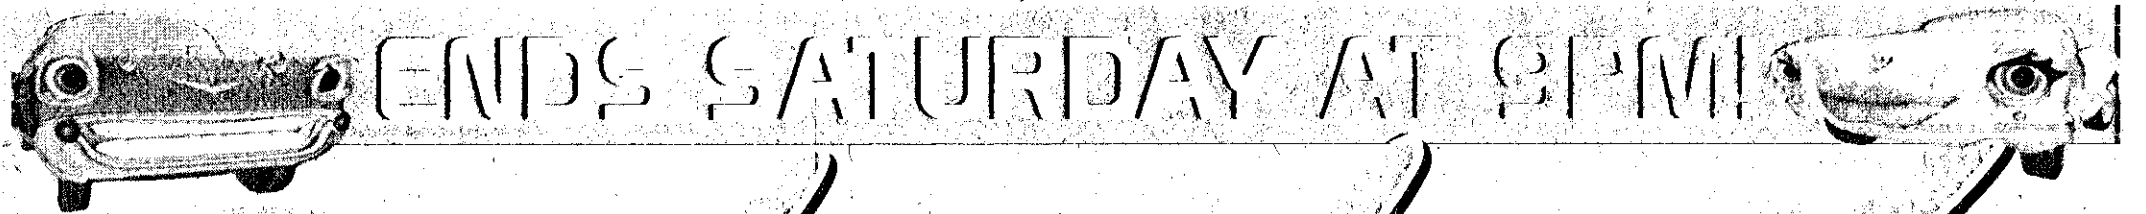

The auto industry, above all, should know that gas guzzlers can't last forever.

Now, and probably too late, it has come to that crossroad, it's another case of corporations interested more in short-term greed.

It has become their long-term headache.

Dad can help with the kids

My husband, Tim, considers himself a "hands-on" dad.

And he is ... most of the time.

Not so when our 3-year-old daughter, Angelina, was a baby.

He would do anything to avoid getting "hands-on" with her diapers, particularly those of the fragrant variety.

Now that our kids are older, though, Tim can say he is "hands-on" and actually mean it.

Things didn't always run so smoothly for this blended family.

When Angelina was 8 months old, I had a part-time job that required me to work on Saturdays.

The first Saturday, as the boys played outside and Angelina sat happily in her exersaucer, Tim decided to clean the house.

As he vacuumed, he smugly wondered what I complain about so much - this whole domestic thing was a piece of cake!

That's when he smelled it. Angelina, playing happily in her exersaucer, had what all parents know of as a "diaper blow-out".

Trying not to gag, he was gingerly carrying her up to the bathtub when the door opened. There stood all three boys. Covered in yellow pellets.

Apparently, they had found a bag of lawn fertilizer and thinking it was sand, threw it all over each other.

On the verge of a breakdown, my husband placed a frantic call to our neighbor.

She ran over to clean up Angelina as Tim immediately stripped all three boys and hurried them into the shower.

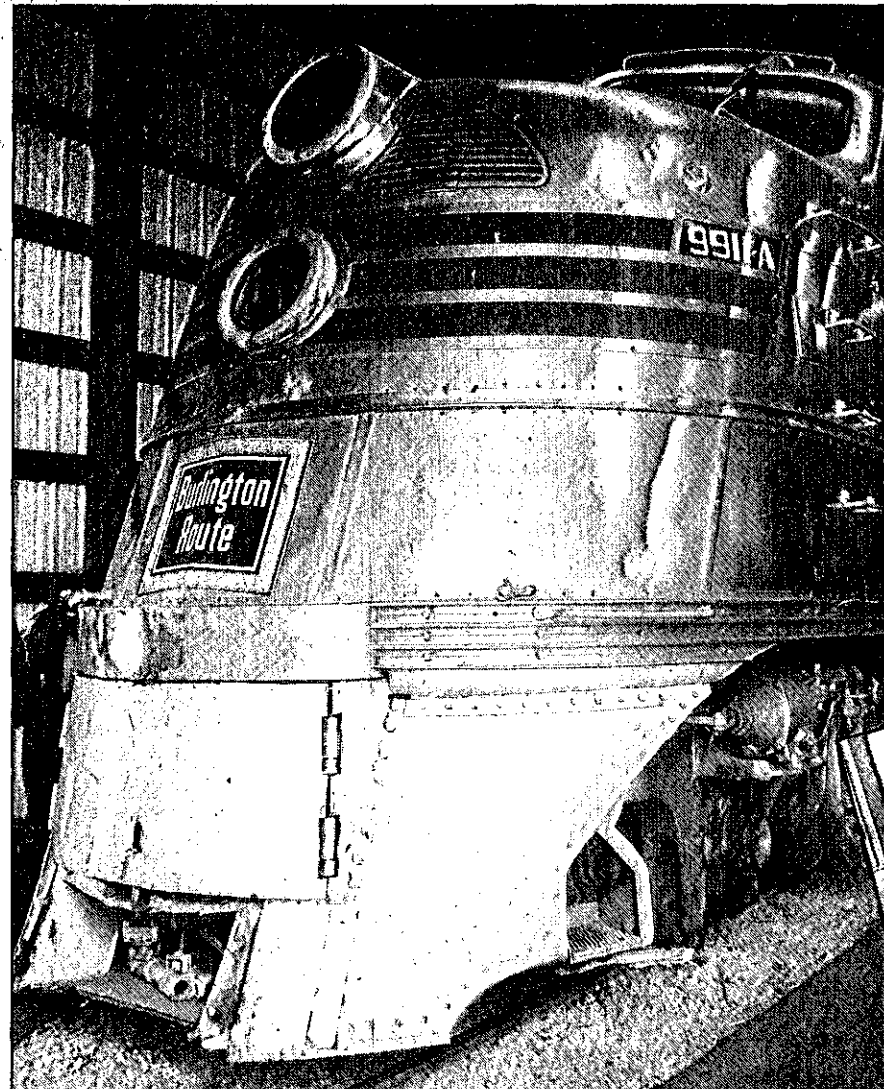

Thankfully, a crisis was averted and my husband is subsequently more careful with where our (now organic) fertilizer is kept in the garage.

He had quite a story to tell me on my first day back to work!

These days, our household runs pretty smoothly when I'm gone.

And I don't even miss coming home to my husband saying, "Before I tell you what happened, honey, first let me say it didn't involve the emergency room ..."

Railway museum features classic trains

UNION - On many occasions I've seen the roadside advertisement for the Illinois Railway Museum in Union, but in my mind Union was as far away as the moon.

I could not have been more wrong.

My husband, Phil, had been talking about how much fun he had at the museum when he went with his family as a child. With my mom in tow, we decided to take a trip back in time and "ride the rails."

The concept of the railway museum originated in 1941, but it wasn't until 1964 that volunteers moved the historical train cars from their original home in North Chicago to their permanent site in Union. (The North Chicago site was never open to the public.)

All of the buildings, track, locomotives and cars were assembled at the Union site on 28 acres of purchased farmland. The museum was originally formed to preserve one important piece of rolling stock: the Indiana Railroad's technically advanced electric car, high-speed lightweight car 65.

The museum has since turned into an educational and historic preservation organization.

It has recreated the largest operating demonstration showcase in the United States, demonstrating the vital role that railroads have played in our country.

Kathy Strelow

Many collections representing different aspects of railroading in the United States are at the museum.

The largest group is the rolling stock of locomotives and cars.

Collections also include buildings, signals, telegraph/communications, tools, signage, cap badges, uniforms, tickets and buttons. There also is an archive of plans, drawings, technical data and photographs housed at the Pullman Library in Union. The Pullman Collection, however, is not open to the public.

There are some fabulously unique cars and locomotives housed at the museum.

The 1936 Nebraska Zephyr, for one, which is the only remaining Chicago streamlined PCC street-car. There also is the 1940 E5a type diesel locomotive, "Silver Pilot," the first GP7 diesel engine, the first Fairbanks Morse locomotive, the oldest surviving street railway car and an 1859 horse car.

One train in particular that caught our attention was the Electric Freight Motor M1 built in 1917 by the Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Company. Out of five that were built, it is the only surviving Milwaukee Electric box motor preserved in its original "as built" condition.

The Illinois Railway Museum is a "living history" museum, and its goal is to restore rail equipment to full operating condition if possible, or to an appearance that is proper for a particular period of history.

On the day we visited the museum, we were fortunate enough to be treated to a rare tour of the Diesel Shop. Here we saw a building of locomotives and train cars that were in the process of being restored to their natural beauty.

There is another opportunity to experience this type of tour: Diesel Days, which takes place July 12 and 13.

Here you will be able to take a tour of the Steam Shop, enjoy vintage diesels from the collection, and ride on a coach train pulled by one of these powerful machines.

The Illinois Railway Museum property consists of nine display barns, housing such historic pieces as locomotives and cars, trolleys and motor buses, a demonstration railway, railroad signals, signs and smaller railroad artifacts.

There are four historic buildings on site, including the 1851 East Union Depot; the 1890 Interlocking Tower from Spaulding; the 1910 "L" Station from Cicero; and the 1934 O'Mahoney Diner that was formerly located in Akron, Ohio.

Hungry?

O'Mahoney's is not only an historic building incorporating a typical pre-World War II roadside diner, but they have inexpensive food that tastes just like grandma used to make.

Free with your admission ticket is the Demonstration Railway and Street Car Line. The Demonstration Railway is a round trip train ride that starts and ends at the depot, and departures are announced periodically over the public address system.

Riding the rails in this fashion, you can almost imagine what it must have been like in the good-old days when trains ruled the transportation world.

A must-see movie in 3-D

'Journey to the Center of the Earth' dazzles eye with effects

By JEFFREY WESTHOFF
jeffreywesthoff@jeffwest.com

"Journey to the Center of the Earth" isn't playing in 3-D in every theater. But that's the only way to see it — Even then you have to wait until the last half-hour for the good stuff.

Until that point, the 3-D effects consist of characters thrusting objects at the camera, from yo-yos to tape measures. None of these, unfortunately, is accompanied by the "WeeOOT, WeeOOT" sound effect that John Candy's Dr. Tongue made famous on "SCTV," but you can supply it yourself. Go on, you know you want to.

The present-day story, which stars Brendan Fraser as geologist Trevor Anderson, isn't exactly another version of Jules Verne's famous novel.

Trevor is obsessed with the volcano research of his brother, who disappeared 15 earlier during an expedition in Iceland. His brother was a Vernian — a scientist who believes Verne's works weren't science fiction but fact. In other words, Verne became a famous author by plagiarizing the diaries of his main characters.

On the weekend Trevor's sullen nephew, Sean (Josh Hutcherson), arrives for a visit, Trevor discovers worldwide volcanic activity is exactly the same as the day his brother (and Josh's father) disappeared.

So, Trevor puts the kid on a plane to Iceland (without calling the boy's mother), where they immediately acquire a sarcastic but pretty mountain guide, Hannah (Anita Briem). They climb a volcano, get trapped in a cave and if

"Journey to the Center of the Earth"

Rated: PG for intense adventure action and some scary moments
Running time: 1 hour, 32 minutes

Writers: Michael Weiss, Jennifer Flackett and Mark Levin
Director: Eric Brevig

you look again at the title you can guess which direction they take.

The producers fashion "Journey" as a "family adventure film," which would be fine if their models were the last three Harry Potter movies or maybe Disney's 1950 version of "Treasure Island." But for these movie makers, "family adventure film" means the dumb live-action Disney films of the 1970s, junk like "Million Dollar Duck" and "Herbie Goes Bananas."

That accounts for the lame early scene where Trevor forgets his sister-in-law will arrive that day, so he scurries about his apartment throwing towels over his dirty dishes. That also accounts for Andrew Lockington's overactive score where the string section practically giggles at the many lame jokes.

The script, credited to Michael Weiss, Jennifer Flackett and Mark Levin, is filled with stale dialogue. "You're not studying samples in a lab, professor," Hannah says after a bit of underground peril. "This is life or death down here."

Brendan Fraser stars in the new "Journey to the Center of the Earth."

The script doesn't improve much when the characters find the center of the Earth — "a world within the world," as Trevor describes it — but the scenery and special effects do. "Journey" is the first full-length live-action film of the current 3-D revival.

Until now only computer-animated films got the 3-D treatment, and so far Disney's "Meet the Robinsons" is the clear winner.

But at least "Journey" doesn't aim to give the viewers whiplash the way Robert Zemeckis' "Beowulf" did.

It offers several moments to marvel at the fantastic subterranean scenery or to thrill at action sequences with sea monsters, floating boulders and a tyrannosaur.

It's not great stuff, but it's good stuff as long as you're watching it in 3-D.

Otherwise you'll probably wonder why on earth characters would spit at the camera. Twice.

NIGHT & DAY

Dining & Entertainment Section

Midnight munching can damper diet plans

Failing to eat enough nutritional food during the day could lead you to munch on unhealthy snacks at night.

(MS) — By now many people realize that eating has as much to do with boredom or habit as it does with hunger. Studies have shown that munching while watching television or being distracted cause people to consume much more than they would if they were taking stock of what they were eating.

Sometimes even the most steadfast dieters and healthy eaters fall victim to the late-night munchies. For whatever reasons, the refrigerator or the snack cabinet seems to beckon after you've washed the last dinner or dessert plate. Sometimes this has to do with true hunger — you haven't consumed enough nutritional food during the day. Most other times it's because you're bored or stressed out. But there are better ways to deal with these cravings — ones that are beneficial for your health and waistline.

- Break the fast: Despite continued reminders that breakfast is the most important meal of the day, many people continue to skip breakfast whether they're in a rush or simply not hungry. Eating at night can cause hunger to wane in the morning and exacerbate the cycle. However, you need that morning fuel to last through the day and keep hunger at bay until your next meal. Starting out your day with a nutritional deficit will most definitely lead to hunger later on.

- Assess your reasons for eating: Is your stomach truly grumbling for food? Or are you bored or stressed out and don't know how else to placate yourself? If you really are hungry, have a light snack, such as air-popped popcorn, yogurt, oatmeal or peanut butter and apple slices. These will fill you up without a lot of fat and calories. If you're not hungry, think of an activity that will calm you or distract you, such as a walk or reading a book.

- Fill up during the day: If you restrict your food intake too much during the day it could end up haunting you in the end. Fuel your body with fiber and protein and make sure you eat enough so you don't binge at night. Also, drink plenty of water, which will also lead to a feeling of fullness.

- Send a signal that the kitchen is closed: Turn off the lights in the kitchen and hide any munchy materials away from sight. This gives the message that the 24-hour diner is actually closed. You can also brush and floss your teeth as a deterrent to eating more.

It's been a good time

There is really no good way to say this, but this will be my last column with the Lake County Journals.

I have taken a job within our company at the Northwest Herald in Crystal Lake.

I am excited to start this new venture in my career, but that isn't making leaving this place much easier.

I remember when I was switched over to the sports beat.

I was so excited. I have emphasized in the past that I have no athletic ability, but that doesn't mean that I don't love sports.

I might not be the biggest fan of all the sports out there.

However, many sports were beginning to grow on me.

Features I wrote about soccer, tennis and lacrosse opened up my eyes to how much I enjoyed watching and learning about the programs.

And my features on hockey just re-emphasized how much I truly love that sport.

Also, reporting on Lake County sports really helped me to learn more about the programs and community of the schools.

I got the chance to meet so many great coaches who I will definitely miss working with.

There also are coaches who I wish I would have gotten a chance to know, but my short time on the sports beat did not allow me that chance.

Even though I will not cover sports for the Journals, I still plan to stay updated with what is going on out here.

Whether it be stopping by to see how my alma mater, the Rams, are doing or other schools in the area I want to know what is going on.

I have my little sister and brother to give me updates on Grayslake Central, but for everything else I will look toward my replacement, Matt Douthett, for answers.

Matt has been covering Fox Lake and Lake Villa/Lindenhurst since he came to the Journals three months ago.

He got a chance to write a few stories in the sports section before, but now he will be running the show.

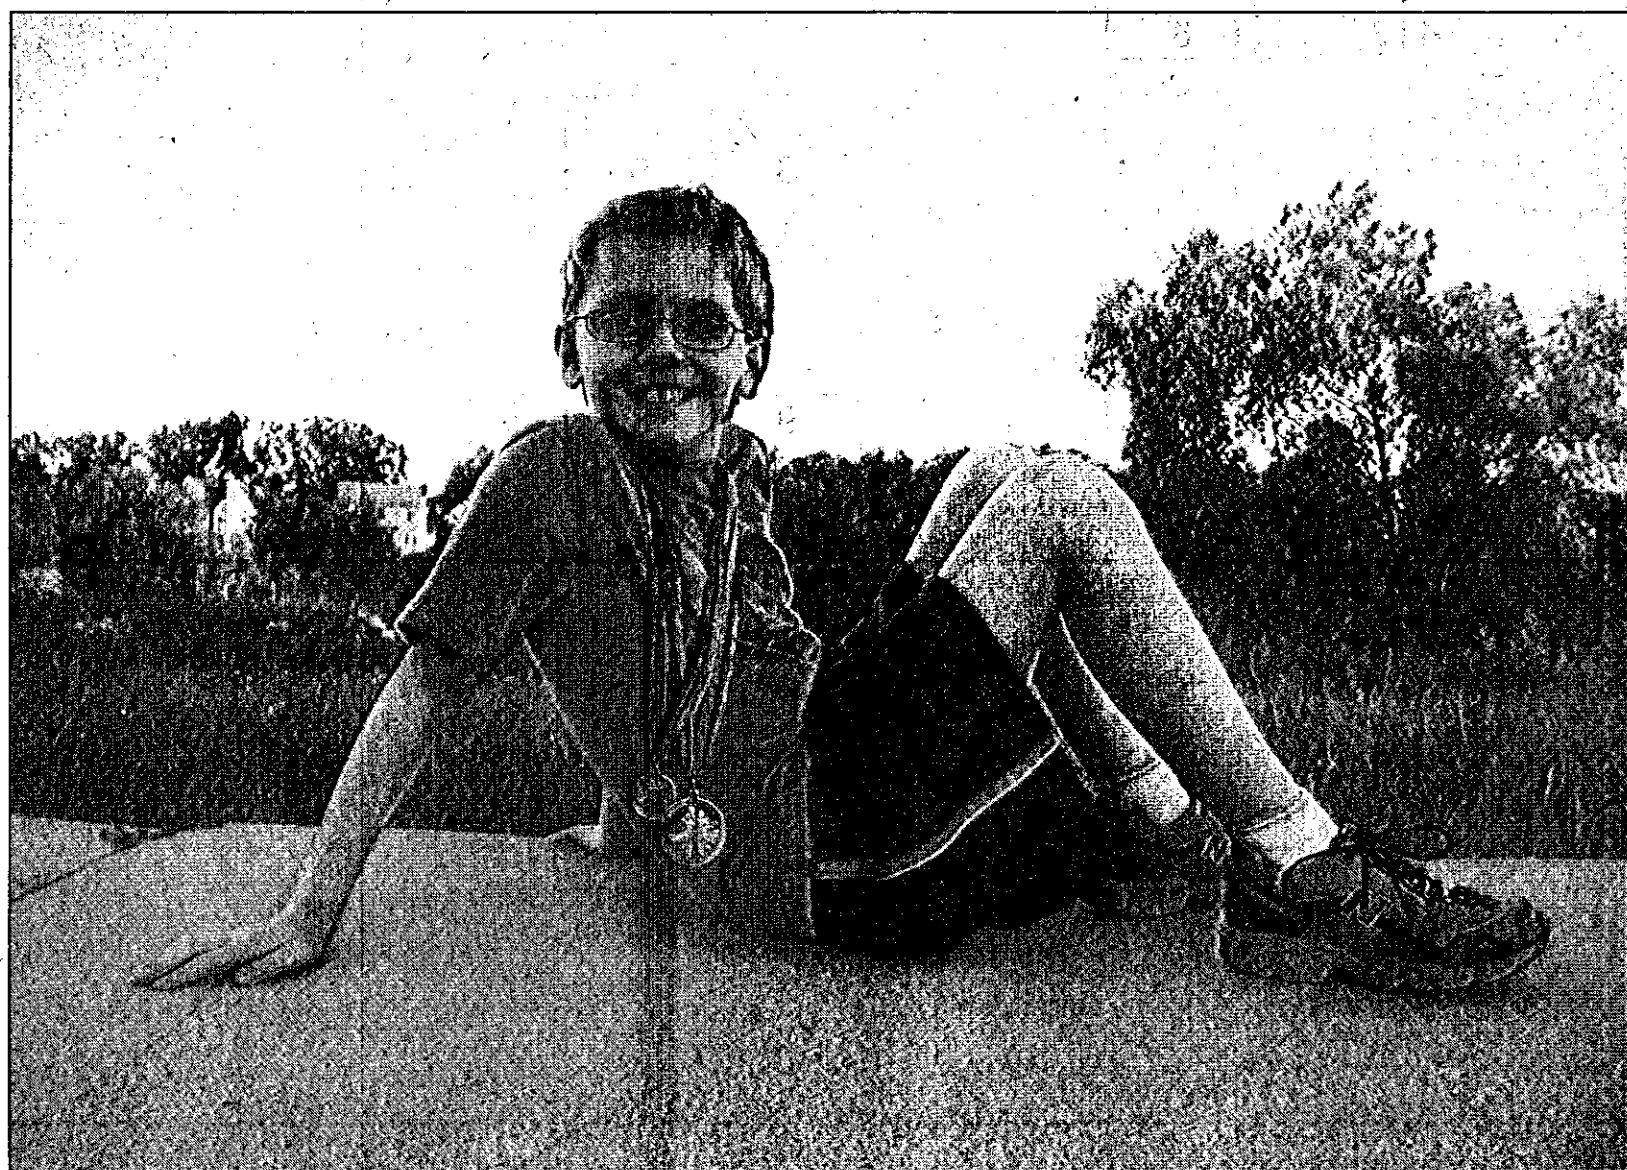

I hope that the coaches, players and communities make Matt feel as welcomed as I have felt since working the sports beat.

But seeing how he's from Indiana, he might need a few tips every once in awhile.

So, feel free to e-mail him at mdouthett@nwnewsgroup.com.

And even if you don't have a story idea, just send him a note welcoming him to the sports beat, something he has been looking forward to.

You can write to Jessica Jacobsen at jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com. Write to new sports reporter Matt Douthett at mdouthett@nwnewsgroup.com.

Eddie Wamser, 8, of Grayslake, proudly displays the medals he won participating in the Special Olympics.

Running with purpose

Grayslake boy wins bronze medal at Special Olympics

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

GRAYSLAKE - Eddie Wamser leads an active life, like most 8-year-old boys. But Eddie's active life helped him earn a medal at the Special Olympics state finals.

Eddie finished third in the 100-meter run in his age category to earn him the bronze medal.

"I was excited," Eddie said.

And Eddie, of Grayslake, said he was just as excited when he won the qualifying round to help him reach the state finals.

So were Eddie's parents, Nancy and Mike Wamser.

"I was very proud of him," Mike said about Eddie finishing first in the qualifying round.

And Nancy was just as pleased about Eddie's win, especially because of how happy he was.

"We were standing at the finish line, and we saw him running so fast and [he] was so happy," Nancy said.

And that happiness shines through Eddie's smiling face. When talking about his accomplishments, Eddie can't help but smile, and his parents are the same way.

Running has become an important part of Eddie's life. Before Eddie was born, he had a stroke, and he also has hypotonia. Hypotonia is a condition where a person has decreased muscle tone, according to Medline Plus Medical Encyclopedia. Because of Eddie's condition, there were times last year that he could not walk to school, Nancy said. But signing Eddie up for track has been something that helps him remain active.

"The track has really helped him build up his endurance and make him stronger all around," Nancy said.

Track also is something that Eddie is very good at and happy to do, Nancy said.

"I remember the first time we took him to track," Nancy said. "We had no idea how fast he could run."

To prepare for the Special Olympics, Eddie got some help from his older brother, Mickey. This year, Mickey was a junior coach who helped Eddie as well as others.

In addition to Mickey, Eddie also credits his mom, dad and sister, Grace, with motivating him.

And that motivation helps Eddie, even when he gets tired.

"I always get tired," he said with a laugh.

But Eddie has a little trick that keeps him going. While running he keeps telling himself that his legs want him to run, so he keeps going.

Jessica Jacobsen - jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

Wamser recently won the bronze medal at the Special Olympics in the 100-meter run. Wamser won the gold medal in the 100-meter run in the qualify round.

Fishing trip with son becomes enlightening experience

Last week I told of fishing with my son, Daniel, who is on leave from the U.S. Army, with guide Phil Piscitello.

The next morning I took Dan out on Lake Michigan with Dave Engle and Bill Bale of the Best Chance Too. The boat was docked at Waukegan for the week.

We departed Waukegan in their 38-foot Tiara, which is loaded with more high-tech electronics than any boat I have ever seen.

The Best Chance Too is the No. 1 tournament boat on Lake Michigan. They don't charter like other boats. Their clients hire them for the week, pay the tournament entry fee and then split the winnings with them.

It is amazing to watch

Steve Sarley

Engle and Bale at work. Engle runs the boat, charting the course and handling the wheel. Bale runs the rigging and the rods.

Engle explained that they had been out the prior day and had limited out on coho. The Morris event scored extra points for bringing in different species. The first rod went off and I told Dan to pick it up. He declined. I guessed that he wanted to watch and learn from the old man. What he was treated to was a lesson in losing a hefty laker about fifteen feet from the boat.

Dan reeled in a nice coho. I matched his. It was Dan's first time out on the big lake, so I deferred most of the opportunities to him. We ended up with nine fish. Dan reeled in seven of them.

I think that Daniel most enjoyed the banter that was being tossed around. We told stories and traded barbs, as men are prone to do.

I thought back to days long past when Dan was my little buddy. Looking at him now, six-foot-three, hair shorn to the nub and possessing a body that is as hard as rock, I felt old, but proud. I used to think of outings with my children as "taking the kids fishing," now I was fishing side-by-side with my equal as an adult.

Dan's choice was to hit a private pond we had fished at last year with my friend, Ken Brown.

Lightning and thunder caused us to turn around and head home in disappointment. After 10 minutes, we looked at each other and our thoughts meshed in silence. I turned the car around and headed toward the pond. Neither of us had any interest in letting Mother Nature ruin our last fishing trip together for who-knows-how-long.

We had spent a lot of time together during his four weeks of leave, but the three times we fished together is something that we will remember for a long, long time.

A couple days before returning home, he received his deployment orders. It was information that we were dreading. Incredibly, his orders have him heading to Korea for the next 16 months.

His mother and I are ecstatic. Korea sounds so much better than Iraq or Afghanistan.

Still though, 16 months is a long time. I'll miss the company of my newly found best fishing buddy. I'll keep his favorite rod and reel all warmed up for him until he returns.

Tim Wolfmeyer: Harden deal the answer to Brewers' shot

CHICAGO — Milwaukee's acquisition of CC Sabathia did not go unnoticed by the Cubs.

"They're going for it," third baseman Aramis Ramirez said. "They're going for it this year."

"They became a lot better," pitcher Kerry Wood said.

"We completed a six-player trade with the Oakland A's," general manager Jim Hendry said.

On Tuesday, the Cubs answered Milwaukee's shot, acquiring Oakland's Rich Harden, the best front line starter left on the market, in a franchise-defining move.

It proved the Cubs are playing for today. Not tomorrow, today.

"It shows you that the Cubs are going to do everything in their power to help us get to where we want to go," Cubs manager Lou Piniella said.

That is the World Series.

The goal simply isn't to make the playoffs. Or win the division.

It's to win a pennant.

(Actually, it's to win it all, but let's not get ahead of ourselves).

And to win said pennant, the Cubs had to look toward October, when more than likely, they'll face one — or both — Milwaukee and Arizona.

Milwaukee has Sabathia and Ben Sheets. Two of the game's best.

Arizona has Brandon Webb and Dan Haren. Two of the game's best. Before Tuesday, the Cubs had Carlos Zambrano and ...

Starter-turned-closer-turned-starter Ryan Dempster? He's a solid three.

Ted Lilly? Do you remember Game 2 of last year's NLDS?

Sean Marshall? Sean Gallagher? Jason Marquis?

Would you trust any of those guys against Sabathia and Sheets?

This move had October written all over it. The month when pitching trumps all.

And when on, there's no one better than Harden.

"I faced Rich Harden ... when he's on, you're not hitting him," Mark DeRosa said.

Mind you, this was said before the two became teammates.

So there was no reason for DeRosa to be untruthful.

Hendry wasn't saying anything scouts haven't already said, anyway.

"We felt this guy's a legitimate high, high-end starter," he said. "It's not any secret that when he's out there he's about as good as it gets."

"When you talk about high-end starters, this is the guy you hope to have."

The Cubs needed a high-end starter. An ace.

They got one Tuesday.

Sure, they got a Mark Prior-like injury risk, but why quibble?

As long as Harden's healthy — and Hendry stressed that he is — he's the guy.

A guy who is lights-out. A guy who many believe has the game's best stuff.

A 26-year-old power pitcher who wins. And strikes people out.

He's Prior — the healthier version.

And amazingly, for an elite, cheap pitcher under team control through the end of next season, the Cubs really didn't give up much.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

This is to inform you that there is a possibility you may be contacted by someone trying to scam you. The scammers use plays such as requesting you to send money prior to making a purchase, or offering to pay you a "processing fee" for depositing checks and sending a percentage back to them. These checks are FAKE and YOU will be held liable for repaying the funds to the bank.

It is usually a good idea to avoid transactions overseas or from out of state. To protect your self, shop locally.

Typically the scammers will contact you via email or via a phone relay system for the hearing impaired so you don't know where they are calling from or what they sound like.

Recently arrests were made in the Netherlands, Nigeria & Canada with fake checks worth more than $2.1 billion dollars. The average victim of this scam loses $3000 to $4000.

Please Be Cautious.

For information on how to report a scam, go to: <http://www.ic3.gov>

This is the Internal Crime Complaint Center and is a partnership between the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) & the National White Collar Crime Center.
